Do you want to doo-bop? Brisbane's cool new live jazz venue

It's a cross between doo-wop and be-bop. It's named after the last studio album recorded by American trumpeter and jazz legend Miles Davis. It's the coolest thing to happen to Brisbane in recent times, and it's about to become the hottest basement in Brisbane. What is it? Doo-Bop Jazz Bar, that's what, and it's all set to bring music to the ears of jazz-loving Brisbaneites from Saturday 17 June 2017.

A long time in the planning (at least, it has seemed like a long time to jazz aficionados just waiting for this jazz joint to hang out its shingle), Doo-Bop Jazz Bar is a two-level live jazz venue in the heart of Brisbane, specifically designed and created as the perfect jazz venue. Piano bar? Check. Basement? Check. Grand pianos? Double check. And all of this is wrapped up in the warehouse ambience of the Federation era building at 101 Edward Street, with its exposed brickwork and oversized beams.

This cool chameleon Art Deco-styled space will operate seven days a week; a brasserie by day with breakfast and coffee served from 6am until 11am. After 11am, and with the addition of a little jazz piano magic, it morphs into the cruisiest piano bar in Brisbane with lunch and then dinner until 11pm. This space is all about casual dining up close and personal with the classic Yamaha C7 grand piano. Menu offerings range from pizza and pasta to steak and charcuterie plates. And entry is FREE.

The Basement @The Bop

Any jazz fan can tell you that from New York to Brisbane the best jazz is always played in a basement. Doo-Bop's Basement will provide the stage, and a 1955 refurbished Steinway grand piano from New York, for some of the very best local, national and international jazz performers in the business. Acts already lined up include Ingrid James, Mal Wood and David Bentley. The Basement will operate from Monday to Saturday from 6pm and on Sundays from 12noon with Swing Sundays. Entry to the Basement ranges between $15.00 & $53.00, depending on your dining options.
